Total length: 14 kilometres

Type of walk: circular

Difficulty: low

Type of path: old road

Suggestions: go by bicycle

Most of the path is on the old road N-1 where it is difficult to see a car. However, better be prudent and walk on the left side of the road.

Our start and arrival point is the main square in La Puebla de Arganzón. We go out from the square towards the right in the main street, walking past the church on our right. Walking on this street we can see at the far end the castle (located on a small hill top). We continue straight on this street, leaving the village behind.

The street will turn a bit to the left for crossing the railway and arriving to the old N1 road. We continue until we reach a roundabout where we continue on straight, as we will continue to walk in parallel to the river. We continue on walking till the road finishes.

When the road finishes we need to take the path to the left to arrive to a new path full of tree in the left hand side.

We continue on straight for a while till after crossing a Stone bridge and a tunnel that will lead us to Nanclares outskirts.

After going for a stroll in Nanclares to come back to Arganzón Plaza we only need ...to walk backwards!
